

I can understand even sympathize with the telemarketers position. The United States provides everyone with the right to free enterprize. They need to earn a living, as we all do. My point however, is a person also has the right not to receive unwanted/unsoliciated phone calls. This is the reason behind the Do Not Call List. Why should a good thing be overturned by a challenge of whiny telemarketing firms. I can not understand why these firms insist on contacting people who obviously do not want to hear from them.
